Series: I Want to Know What Love Is Part 3: Love Is Kind
Travis Brawner

1. How did Travis define kindness? (Mild and gentle benevolence, desiring to do good to others.) Who comes to your mind when you think of someone who is obviously kind?
2. List the four groups of people who should receive our kindness. (Those you like; those who are different from you, those who offend you, those who attack you.)
3. Who is a casual acquaintance whom you like and why?
4. Who besides your mate is one of your best friends? How do you show kindness to him or her?
5. Do you know couples who don't seem to like one another?
6. When a woman married 50 years was asked to give advice to an engaged couple, she said, "Be kind to each another." Has kindness characterized your marriage?
7. What are several areas, most mentioned by Travis, that people can be different from one another? (social/economic level, race, age, politics, education, non-essential beliefs)
8. How have you been kind to someone different from you?
9. Has kindness broken down barriers between you and someone who is different than you? How?
10. What are examples of non-essentials hurting the church?
11. Are you easily offended? What irritates you no end?
12. Have you ever been the victim of an attack? Did you maintain your ability to be kind? If so, how?
13. What accounts of Jesus's life speak kindness to you? How do these events inspire you to be kind?
14. What are some examples both biblical and more current of people who have been kind to their enemies or to those who have harmed them?
